OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"All the articles in the twelfth number of the 'National' are remarkably well written, and the works reviewed of paramount importance in the annals of literature. . . . The article upon 'The Old English Nobility' is one of considerable interest, the subject being most ably handled. . . . The 'National Review' already stands in the foremost rank with those of its great competitors, the 'Edinburgh' and 'Quarterly;' and this number will augment its reputation."—Morning Post, April 26th, 1858.

"In the 'National' the opening article is an admirably written and discriminating criticism on Mr. Matthew Arnold's tragedy of 'Merope,' in which the individual drama itself is discussed in reference to the general question of the influence of the ancient on the forms of the modern drama. . . . An interesting biographical sketch of Ulrich von Hutten, in the form of a review of Strauss's Life of that remarkable character; a notice of the 'Life and Writings of Swedenborg,' temperate and candid; and a paper, slightly biographic, but mainly critical, on Paley and Channing, may be classed together, and are all good and interesting."—Scotsman, April 24th, 1858.

"Turning to the 'National,' the first article of the number is unequivocally also the first in point of literary merit. For thorough mastery of the subject, for delicacy and depth of thought, and for pureness and 'melody' of composition, it would be difficult to find among English essayists any paper possessing equal claims to admiration with that on Mr. Arnold's tragedy of 'Merope.' . . . And there is a semi-biographical and very interesting article on Swedenborg, in which the character and pretensions of that extraordinary man are estimated from a point of view equally removed from the 'Swedenborgian,' and from the hard, sceptical, suspicious position usually assumed with regard to them."—Economist, April 10th, 1858.

"Some good reviews of ancient and modern literature; an essay on 'The Old English Nobility;' a notice of Lord Grey on Reform,—fundamentally consistent with the views we have from time to time expressed in this Journal, and adding another to the already numerous protests against the silly and intemperate attack of the 'Times,'—and a very pleasant article on the Waverley Novels, are perhaps the best papers in this valuable publication."—The Press.

"This is a very excellent number of the 'National.' The subjects are selected with great judgment, and treated with scholarlike ability and research. The first article, on Mr. Arnold's 'Merope,' besides genial and just criticism on the work which is its more particular subject, contains many excellent observations on Greek, as distinct from modern, tragic art. . . . The next essay, on 'Strauss's Life of Ulrich von Hutten,' presents a very interesting picture of the literary activity of the early days of the Reformation, where the scholars, or, as they were then called the 'humanists,' fought the battle of freedom side by side with the religious innovators. . . . Art. III., on 'Recent Contributions to the Study of Latin Literature,' is the work of a scholar and a thinker. . . . Art. IV., on that singular theosophist, Emanuel Swedenborg, is well deserving of careful perusal. . . . Art. V. is an elaborate and painstaking essay on the 'Old English Nobility.' From a graphic series of notices on the 'Barons of Runnymede,' we select the following sketch. . . . It will be at once admitted that the titles of these papers evince great variety in selection; those who peruse them will allow that they are equally distinguished by ability of treatment. On the whole, this is, we think, the best number that has yet appeared of this very rising periodical."—Daily News, April 22nd, 1858.
